Matchmaker for millionaires' dating agency

'I genuinely love work... annoying, eh? My job is so relaxed and full of socialising that it gives me the ideal work-life balance.'

'I headhunt eligible partners for millionaire dating agency Seventy Thirty, so I'm paid to go to London's top private members' clubs, balls, gallery openings and parties, and I'm always eating at posh restaurants like Nobu.

'My work's split between chatting to members in the office and going out three or four nights a week. I can be out 'til midnight, but I love all the invitations and getting to meet new people. I don't have to have business conversations with my contacts – we're chatting about their romantic expectations, which is fascinating. Then the rest of the time, I do my own thing and spend time with my boyfriend and friends. It really is the perfect job.'

21st-Century Survival Tip: 'The best way to feel like you're getting work-life balance is to choose a career you'd do for free.'
